RED ARMIES BREAK THROUGH AT NEW POINTS

THE German Command, with the Dnieper, Kiev and the Crimea in the balance, is making a supreme bid to halt the westward drive of the Red armies, Reuter's special correspondent cables from Moscow. The battles on the Dnieper, he says, are again renewed on a full scale and are comparable with those fought at Byelgorod and Orel three months ago.

The Soviet communiqué reports new breaks-through S.E. of Kremenchug and south of Gomel.

German shock forces along the Dnieper are no longer numbered in regiments or battalions, but in divisions, Reuter's correspondent states. As the battle swells, the Red Army maintains steady progress from its principal bridgeheads on the west ban': of the river.

Powerful forces are driving south along the railway line from Zaporozhe to Melitopol, where bitter house-to-house fighting is still in progress, after four days.

North and south of Gomel, where the Red Army is striking in considerable strength, the Germans are evacuating their most valuable equipment by train and in gliders, he states.

Massive Soviet forces—now well into the Ukraine—from the western bank are fighting a decisive battle with the German southern armies for Kiev and the mastery of the entire right bank. Both sides are throwing in as many troops as possible, and the maximum amount of available material, in order to deploy on a wide front round the bridgeheads above and below Kiev and south-east of Kremenchug.

MASSIVE ATTACK

A massive Red Army attack on "a scale not previously experienced" along a twenty miles front north-west of Dnepropetrovsk was reported by the German News Agency. Fifteen Soviet rifle divisions and some 250 tanks were said to have conducted this attack. Over 200 batteries of artillery of all calibres and many powerful fighter aircraft formations supported it. Berlin stated: "The intended break-through was not achieved."

The Germans are suffering heavy casualties, as wave after wave of tanks and infantry are broken on the fringe of the Soviet perimeters, Reuter's correspondent reports.

The Germans are counter-attacking with the evident object of splitting up the Soviet forces as a preliminary move to their destruction in isolated batches; but, Reuter says, the manœuvring Soviet spearheads are checkmating each German move with a mixture of boldness and skill. The sudden intensification of Red Army assaults south-east of Kremenchug, for example, comes at a time when the Germans have already switched big reserves of men and material to the sectors north and south of Kiev.

The battle of Melitopol, which, it is now disclosed, began a fortnight ago, is going steadily against the heavily reinforced German defenders. One Soviet commentator said yesterday: "The liberation of the city is a matter for the immediate future."

With the fall of Melitopol the entire German right flank will be exposed bringing the Red Army over a direct road to the mouth of the Dnieper and the approaches to the Crimea.

The Soviet communiqué also reported that counter-attacks were repulsed north of Kiev and bridgeheads enlarged on the right bank of the Dnieper; that south of Zaporozhe several places were captured, including the railway station of Popovo, and that Lovev, at the confluence of the Sozh River with the Dnieper, was captured.

Defences Broken near Gomel and Kremenchug

LAST night's Soviet communiqué reported breaks-through as follows:—

"South-east of Kremenchug the German defences were broken on a stretch of 28 miles and to a depth of 18½ miles. The Dnieper was forced south of Gomel, and German defences broken over 12½ miles.

"Street fighting continues in Melitopol. 139 tanks were destroyed or disabled."—(Reuter.)

Emperor Accuses Badoglio

THE Emperor Haile Selassie told Reuter's, in an exclusive interview, that no act by Italy and "the vanquished Marshal Badoglio" can save Italians from just punishment for their crimes.

In an outspoken statement in Addis Ababa, the Emperor said:—"Its so-called empire in ruins, its armies shattered, its fleet surrendered, its entire homeland in the hands of foes now locked in a bitter struggle, the Government of Marshal Badoglio has finally found it advantageous to declare war on its ally of yesterday.

"The vanquished Marshal of Italy now states that his sole purpose is to free the country from German oppression, and that by this gesture all Italian bonds with the past are broken.

"The alleged desire to drive the German oppressors from the Italian homeland, to which they had been invited, cannot break the bonds forged in the past, which tie the Italian nation to its guilty attempts to drive the Ethiopians, Albanians, French, Greeks and Yugoslavs from their homes.

"Nor can Badoglio, genius of poison gas, break the bonds forged in the past, which will for ever tie his name to the murder of our children, the gassing of our villages, and the fouling of our fair land.

"NO ESCAPE"

"Such clumsy attempts to steal into the camp of the victors, such desperate efforts to escape personal responsibility before the tribunal to judge war criminals, and the inevitable retribution for crimes inflicted, such flagging hopes that a past, replete with crimes, atrocities and ignominious treachery, can be abolished at a stroke of the pen will deceive no one.

"Ethiopia reserves all rights to obtain satisfaction of her just demands. By reason of the armistice Italy and her vanquished Marshal have accepted total surrender, and no act on their part can avail them to escape the just punishment of crimes for which they will be called upon to atone."—(Reuter.)

Australian Drive for Japanese Base

Australian forces driving on Madang, main Japanese base in New Guinea, are four miles north-east of Kumbarum in the Ramu Valley and 10 miles north-east of Dumpu.

A report from General MacArthur's H.Q. this morning states that 84 Japanese 'planes were shot down during new battles over New Guinea. Forty-six were brought down over Oro Bay.

Allied aircraft also heavily attacked the Japanese base at Madang.

Other air actions in the South and South-West Pacific brought the total of Japanese 'planes shot down to 92.

New York Radio reported yesterday that American troops have occupied Gizo Island in the Solomons. Gizo is a few miles south-west of Kolombangara.

A new outbreak of bitter fighting in Yunnan, Chinese province bordering on Burma, is reported last night from Chungking.

The delay in opening an offensive against the Japanese in Burma increases the prospect that the United Nations may have to fight a one-sided war against Japan for another critical year, according to well informed quarters here, says a Reuter telegram from Washington. It is not considered likely that Lord Louis Mountbatten can build up his staff and train his forces in combined operations in time to launch a major offensive when the weather allows.

Swiss Neutrality

Dr. M. Pilet-Golaz, who represents the Political Department on the Swiss Federal Council (the equivalent of Foreign Minister), said yesterday at Berne:—

"It is not enough for us to proclaim our will to be neutral; we must be ready to defend our neutrality against all and for all. The closer the war comes to our territory the more watchful we must be."—(Reuter.)

Sumner Welles Drafts Post-war Policy

MR. SUMNER WELLES, former United States Under-Secretary of State, yesterday, in New York, called for an agreement now between Britain, Russia, China and the United States for co-operation within the framework of the Atlantic Charter after the war, and for the creation of an Executive Council of United Nations' representatives to decide the military conduct of the war. Quoted by Reuter, he said he thought the agreement should include these cardinal points:—

The four Powers and other United Nations members should undertake the task of keeping the peace of the world after this war; should provide an armed contribution for this undertaking, and agree upon a common policy of realistic justice towards Germany and other conquered Axis Powers; provide for progressive reduction of armaments; agree not to take independent action affecting the sovereign rights of other nations, and pledge to further and to perfect the establishment of a universal world organisation, in which, ultimately, the agreement would be merged.

Mr. Welles added: "Every nation which becomes a member of the international organisation to be set up should be obliged to show that its citizens are guaranteed freedom of religion, speech and information by its national constitution."

Any international organisation should establish the basic principle that no nation had the inherent and unlimited right to govern subject peoples, and that, until these alien races were fitted for autonomy, the administering Power must hold itself as a trustee responsible to world public opinion, as represented in the international organisation.

Youth Unemployment

The Federation of Irish Manufacturers is co-operating with the Youth Unemployment Commission in obtaining data on the employment of young people in Eire. A questionnaire has been made out to send to the 751 members of the Federation, who are asked to fill it in as fully as they can. Their answers will not be published. The questionnaire deals with the age of first employment, continuity of employment, educational standards, health and other matters. At a meeting of the Council of the Federation on Friday last the members were called on to co-operate fully.

Full Sugar Ration Restored

THE sugar ration has been restored to ½lb., following the settlement of the beet factories' dispute.

The announcement comes as welcome news to manufacturers, catering establishments, institutions and housewives. It is expected that Clarnico-Murray's sweet factory, which had been closed, will now be in a position to reopen. Also there should be a sufficiency of jam and sweets for public consumption.

Prior to the strike about 40 per cent. more jam was being delivered generally compared with 1942.

In many cases on Saturday domestic consumers of sugar were only given ½lb. The extra ½lb. can now be obtained from the shopkeepers.

KILNS IN ORDER

During the week-end the boilers and kilns at the four beet factories at Mallow, Tuam, Thurles and Carlow were put into working order for an immediate resumption of work. The 2,400 workers involved in the dispute all will be at their posts in a day or two, and the factories working at full pressure, an official of the Sugar Company stated.

General satisfaction was expressed in the Thurles area with the settlement of the strike. The majority of the men returned to work at Thurles factory on Saturday morning, and the remainder will report for work this morning. Under revised arrangements beet deliveries by rail will commence on Monday next, and by road on November 4th.

Refining is scheduled to start on November 1st, and slicing on the following day. Approximately 700 men will be employed at Thurles during the manufacturing campaign, which is expected to run about four months.

The Mallow branch of the I.T.G.W.U. met last night and a special meeting of the Cork District Committee of the Amalgamated Engineering Union on Saturday night was attended by the general organiser, who, with the district secretary, communicated with the factory management at Mallow. All regular employees are to return to work and an extra 400 campaign men are to come on gradually.

Deliveries have already been arranged.

Dublin Team Wins A.F.S. Championship

WATCHED by the Minister for Co-ordination of Defensive Measures, five Dublin men yesterday won for their city the National Auxiliary Fire Services' championship shield, which was contested in Griffith Barracks, Dublin. Scoring 398 marks out of 400, they beat teams from all over Ireland, being nine marks ahead of the Limerick team, their nearest rivals. Cork, with a score of 378, were third. The Casualty Services' championship shield was won by a Dun Laoghaire team, scoring 143 marks, and beating a Dublin team by one, and a Cork team by two marks.

Mr. Frank Aiken stressed the importance of A.R.P. services, and reminded his listeners that there were three neutral countries which had suffered much more heavily from air bombs than twenty-two or twenty-three of the belligerent States. "Our unity and the sacrifices of those who joined the Army, A.R.P. and other local auxiliary services to defend the agreed policy of neutrality have kept us safe," he added. Some members of the A.R.P. services had already spent their free time over a period of five years in training, he said, and the Government was deeply appreciative of their long and arduous work. He hoped that not only would the present members persevere with their training, but that fresh recruits would join their ranks.

The winning teams were:—A.F.S.—Dublin, represented by Station Officer F. J. Gillespie, M. Molloy, J. A. Freeney, T. Greville, P. Carr and F. Price (reserve). Casualty Service—Dun Laoghaire, represented by P. W. Beirne, P. Long, N. Brown, W. Webster and C. White (reserve).

The attendance included: Mr. Sean Moylan, Minister for Lands; Lieut.-General D. McKenna, Chief of Staff; Colonel Liam Archer, Assistant Chief of Staff; Colonel J. Flynn, Adjutant-General; Colonel T. J. McKinney, Director, Medical Services; Colonel S. O'Sullivan, Director, L.D.F.; Colonel T. McGrath, Director, Ordnance; Colonel J. Gleeson, Director, Engineering; Major J. J. Comerford, Chief Superintendent, Dublin Fire Service; Chief Superintendent T. Casserley, General W. R. E. Murphy, Assistant Commissioner, Garda Siochana; Mr. J. J. McElligott, Secretary, Department of Finance; Mr. R. S. Laurie, Chief Warden, Dublin; Mr. P. J. Hernon, City Manager; Mr. T. C. O'Mahony, Dun Laoghaire Borough Manager; Mr. W. P. Blunden, A.R.P. Branch, Department of Defence; Assistant Commissioner J. P. McNamara, St. John Ambulance Brigade; Dr. Henry Reddin, Mr. M. J. Kane, A.R.P. Officer, Dun Laoghaire; Mr. R. Briscoe, T.D.; Alderman A. Byrne, T.D.; Alderman J. B. Callen, Mayor of Drogheda.

Re-arrested After Paying £1,000 Fines

At Belfast Custody Court on Saturday, Thomas Uniacke and his wife, Bridget, of Shore road, Belfast, were remanded on bail until next Friday charged with stealing 3,198 lb. of tobacco, valued £6,995, the property of Nicolstrand Company, White House, Antrim.

Mr. John I. G. Fox, for the defendants, said that they had paid fines of £1,000 imposed on them on Friday in a Customs tobacco charge and immediately on payment had been re-arrested. He did not know what the magistrate's viewpoint was with regard to transactions of that kind, but it could reasonably be said that, to some extent, the defendants had purged the offences in connection with the tobacco. The male defendant had been in custody up to six weeks and the value of the goods, as divorced from duty, was in the neighbourhood of £200.

Mrs. Mary Breslin, 25 Whitewell Crescent, and Mrs. Margaret McGettigan, Shore road, were remanded on bail, charged with receiving quantities of tobacco, the property of Nicobrand.

Soviet Paper Calls for Second Front

A special article in yesterday's Red Star, quoted by Reuter, calling for a second front in the West, says: "That is the key to a swift end of the war.

"Now the main struggle is going on on one decisive front—the Soviet-German front. The main forces of Britain and the United States have not yet really entered the struggle. Italy has become a battlefield, and the position of Germany in the Balkans has become considerably more complicated, but only in the West, where the frontiers of Germany are most vulnerable, is there, as formerly, a complete lull."

U-boat Crisis Nears "Show-down"

A report issued by the Senate Naval Committee yesterday in Washington said: "The crisis with the U boat campaign is just now building to a show-down. The pattern of the Battle of the Atlantic remains an immense one—and one which changes hourly."

The report said the United States is now shipping food and equipment to at least 32 different fronts, some of them 17,000 miles from the point of origin. "In the midst of war," it added, "the United States has built up its navy into the greatest sea and air power on earth. Its size is dwarfed only by the size of the task which confronts it."

Britain and the United States were now transporting monthly to North Africa 40,000 to 50,000 tons of civilian supplies, and 40,000 tons of coal and oil products for industry.—(Reuter.)

GRANTED IN LONDON
Certificates of Irish Shipping Officers

IRISH sovereignty does not in practise extend to the granting, suspending or cancelling of the certificates of officers of our mercantile marine. This is one of the things to which attention is drawn by the report published on Saturday of the Court of Inquiry into the stranding of the s.s. Irish Plane, writes an Irish Times reporter. In this matter the Court recommended that the present position should be clarified and amended by international agreement.

The present position is that though examinations for certificates are held in Dublin they are held by what is virtually an agency of the British Ministry of War Transport, or in peace time the British Board of Trade. The examination papers are set in London, sent over in sealed packages, and returned for correction to London. On the results of this examination, supplemented by a verbal examination by an Irish official, the British authority decides to grant or not to grant certificates. Should the person holding the certificate subsequently be guilty of a grave breach of duty it is the British authority which decides whether or not his certificate should be taken away.

In the Dominions the position is different. They have their own machinery for granting and suspending certificates, and their procedure has been validated by a British Order in Council. In Eire, when the State was set up, no attempt was made to establish our own authority in this matter, possibly because it was felt that our merchant marine was so small that it did not justify the setting up of a costly examining staff. Though the question of suspending certificates does not, of course, arise out of the report on the Irish Plane accident, the position appears to be that if there were an accident in which the officers of an Irish-owned, Irish-registered, Irish-manned ship were proved guilty of gross negligence, the Irish authority could not take any action to suspend or cancel the certificates of these officers.

It is felt that, as a result of this inquiry, and of the growth and expected future growth of our merchant marine, the Government will take action in this matter and have the whole question of the granting of certificates reviewed, with a view to bringing our practice into line with that of the Dominions.

Women Catholics in Protest Procession

Thousands of women gathered yesterday at Tower Hill, London, for a protest meeting organised by the Catholic Parents' Association against the British Government White Paper proposals for education. Many carried banners bearing the words "Martyrs of England—Save Our Schools."

Later they marched in a procession more than a mile and a half long, singing hymns and praying, to the Church of the English Martyrs, where, kneeling on the road and pavements, they received the Benediction.

Cavan Man Dies from Head Injuries

Shortly after he had heard a scuffling noise and the voice of a man calling for help early on Saturday night, John Morgan, of Corraflieve, Virginia, Co. Cavan, discovered his brother, Owen, lying on the roadway about one hundred yards from his home, suffering from severe head injuries. He died shortly after he had been carried into his house. Aged about fifty years, Owen was employed as a farm labourer. It is understood that Dr. John McGrath, State Pathologist, will travel to Virginia to-day to conduct a post-mortem examination of the body.

Irritation Against Irish "Fomented"

Captain Henry Harrison, author of several books and pamphlets on Anglo-Irish relations, said at the National University of Ireland Club in London last night: "Considerable numbers of our people here know there is a good deal of acute irritation among certain ranks of the British, which sometimes leads to suspicion that it is artificially fomented by mischief-makers."

It was true, he said, that Irish people in Britain were remitting a good deal of money to Ireland, but to say that Ireland's people were living exclusively on that money was a gross absurdity.

World News in Brief

Cairo Tremors.—Short successive earthquake tremors were felt throughout the Cairo area on Saturday afternoon.

Archæologist Dead.—Mr. Richard Latham Cartwright, Bristol born archæologist, who later achieved distinction throughout South America for his scientific works, has died, aged 74, after a long illness, at Santiago, Chile.

Nelson's Pine Gone.—A Reuter telegram from Naples states that the pine of Nelson—the great tree under whose shade Nelson used to keep tryst with Lady Hamilton—has been blown skyhigh in air raids. Its remnants are being sought for sending to the British Admiralty.

Viscount's Victory. — Viscount Suirdale, son of the Earl of Donoughmore, polled 11,976 votes to 10,890 cast for Samuel Bennett (Indept. Socialist), son of a shepherd, in the Peterborough by-election. Viscount Suirdale stood as Conservative and National Government candidate.

Ambrosio and Roatta.—Generals Ambrosio and Roatta have never formed part of the Badoglio Government, said Bari Radio on Saturday night. They have merely retained the purely military functions they have hitherto exercised.

Mid-Air Collision. — Eight officers and men are missing following a mid-air collision between two United States blimps in dense fog off the New Jersey coast, it was announced on Saturday. One of the blimps crashed.

Princess Councillor.—Princess Elizabeth will be able to join the British Council of State, which acts in certain circumstances for the King when Parliament has passed the Regency Bill, which will be the first business at the next sitting.

'Planes Over Sofia.—During black-out hours, between 9.55 and 11.15 on Saturday night, unidentified 'planes flew over Sofia several times, and A.-A. guns fired a number of shots at them, says Hungarian radio.—(Reuter.)

NEW ALLIED ATTACK REPORTED
Germans in Italy Face Pincer Threat

THE Germans have been forced out of their positions on the Volturno River in Italy, and, according to Reuter, are being menaced by an Allied pincer movement.

Strong forces of troops and guns are being massed by the Allies for the advance towards Rome.

A Rome Radio report this morning stated: "With imposing infantry forces, the Allies have launched an attack on a larger scale than ever before."

(From Reuter's Special Correspondent at Allied H.Q.)

A British-American pincer movement is keeping the Germans on the retreat from the Volturno line. Already the Germans have been forced to abandon most of their positions on the river, and are still on the road back.

The left arm of the pincers is formed of British troops, who landed from the sea just north of the Volturno mouth. Rapidly consolidating their positions along a canal north of the estuary, they have struck inland along this line, swiftly increasing their threat to the German coastal flank.

American troops, who form the right arm, seized valuable heights north-east of Capua, which dominates the flat cultivated land immediately north of the city.

REINFORCEMENTS

This simultaneous menace to both flanks has compelled Marshal Kesselring to move back the forces concentrated to oppose the Allied main bridgeheads at Capua. Allied troops have been able to go forward without suffering the heavy casualties that would have resulted from a yard-by-yard battle.

Already tremendous numbers of men, tanks, guns, and other war material have been concentrated on the north bank for the next stage of the thrust towards Rome. This stage will be a grim battle for the vital road junction north of Capua, from which two great highways fork out for the capital.

The Germans are being hurled back from their elaborate Volturno line defences in what threatens to develop into one of the most decisive defeats they have suffered since the Allied invasion of Italy began.

NEW THREAT

A new threat to Marhal Kesselring is developing 17 miles east of Capua, where the Fifth Army has pushed the Germans back between three and four miles in a strong thrust north of Amorosi. Heavy fighting is going on, and the Germans are struggling grimly to hold on to the high hills protecting their left flank resisting the Allied advance from Capua.

Ahead of the Fifth Army Allied bombers and fighters are attacking the main roads leading from the battle area to Rome, railway yards packed with German supplies, and German artillery positions.

Over the Volturno front fighter-bombers silenced a great German railway gun with a range of 20,000 yards (about 11½ miles) which had been shelling Allied troops on the central front for some time.

On the eastern half of the front the Eighth Army advance has gained great impetus from the capture of the whole road from Termoli to Vinchiaturo. Isernia, vital junction town on the trans-Apennine road to Rome and 20 miles north-west of Vinchiaturo, is now threatened. Generally the Eighth Army is not meeting determined resistance, but furious artillery duels are reported all along the 100 miles front.

BRITISH warships on Saturday again bombarded German positions north of the Volturno estuary, according to German radio yesterday.

Fighter-bombers, it was said, immediately launched a sharp attack, and direct hits were scored on a large warship, which was enveloped in smoke. A heavy cruiser was also damaged.—(Reuter.)

Allied Ships Active in Adriatic

YESTERDAY'S communiqué from Allied Headquarters stated:—

"Naval.—During the night of October 14-15 British light coastal craft operating in the Piombino Channel, between Elba and the mainland of Italy, sank two enemy vessels. No further details are available.

"British light coastal craft are active in the Adriatic. On the night of October 14-15 craft operating off Mljet island, near Dubrovnik, came under the fire of enemy shore batteries. They suffered no damage or casualties.

"Land.—After more than two days of heavy fighting the Fifth Army has forced the enemy back from the majority of his positions along the River Volturno. Further bridges are under construction and strong forces of all arms are being passed across. A general advance westward has been made on the Eighth Army front. The whole of the important lateral road from Termoli to Vinchiaturo is in our hands.

"Air.—Medium bombers, escorted by Lightnings, attacked marshalling yards at Ancona, on the east coast. Light and medium bombers operating north of Capua attacked roads and supply sheds. A sweep of the east coast railways, fighters and fighter-bombers shot up six trains and destroyed many rail cars. On Friday-Saturday night light bombers attacked motor transport and railways south of Rome. Last night the Rome-Casale airfield was bombed. Eight enemy aircraft were destroyed during the period. None of our aircraft is missing."

"Italians Will Fight Outside Italy" —BADOGLIO

United Nations Radio (Algiers) said last night:—

"Marshal Badoglio has told the Press that Italians are willing to fight the Germans even beyond the frontiers of Italy."

"Our troops will march side by side with the Allied forces until victory is achieved," Badoglio was quoted as saying.—(Reuter.)

U.S. Giant Bomber.—America's giant new B-29 super long-range bomber, now being mass-produced, is planned for combat use within the next six months, says the United States Office of War Information. The Flying Fortress carries 20,800lb. of bombs.

Dail's Task in Coming Session

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

THE resumption of the Dail on Wednesday, after one of its longest holidays, is being approached by members on all sides of the House with exceptional interest.

The position of the Government itself, as stated at the recent Fianna Fail Ard Fheis, is precarious. Mr. de Valera, with an available party of 66, is confronted with a possible combination of all other groups, numbering 71, and even though such a combination is extremely unlikely, its possibility will inevitably cramp his action.

His well-known aversion to having to rely on the co-operation of any group other than those who constitute his own well-knit followers makes his attitude one of constant challenge to the majority to bring about his defeat; nevertheless, among close observers there is no apprehension that this will occur—at least not for some years. The probability is that in the session now about to open there will be an absence of topics likely to bring about any violent controversy.

ALLOWANCES BILL

Of the legislation to be introduced the outstanding measure will be that concerning family allowances. This will be a strictly conservative measure. As Mr. de Valera pointed out at the recent Ard Fheis, the amounts to be awarded of a certainty will be severely criticised by more than one of the Opposition parties. Purely experimental as the scheme is, it will be easy to make a case for going slow in the early stages. If the Government have in mind any other major measures, they have not been indicated; but clearly there are many big problems awaiting solution, such as drainage on a large scale, as outlined in the report of the Drainage Commission.

Agricultural matters will be discussed on the estimates for Dr. Ryan's Department, when the Farmers' Party will have ample opportunity to make their views known. Judging by the policy on which they contested the general election, these are very comprehensive, including the demand that the farmers should have full control of the production and marketing of produce and the elimination of unnecessary interference in the farmers' business by State officials.

THE SENATE

A large number of questions will appear on the Order Paper for Wednesday's sitting, and notice has been given of several motions for debate, including one concerning the conduct of the Senate elections. There will also be a motion for the issue of the writ for a by-election in Tipperary to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Deputy Martin Ryan.

A meeting of the Senate will be summoned for 27th October.

Massing on Roads to Rome

HUGE concentrations of Allied armour and troops have been massed on the main roads leading to Rome, according to a broadcast from the city last night.

"Fresh British and American troops, brought up from Campobasso, are swelling these concentrations."—(Reuter.)

More Raids on Users of Illegal Bacon

THE war on illegal bacon-curers is to be waged to a greater extent than heretofore. The Pigs and Bacon Commission officials will continue their raids on hotels and restaurants, in the interests, it is alleged, both of public health and the legitimate bacon-curers.

"The campaign will assist us immensely," a prominent pork butcher stated on Saturday. "The greatest offender in the killing of pigs has been the farmer, but now the situation has been aggravated by the wholesale killing of animals in insanitary places throughout Dublin.

"The legitimate pig trade," he added, "is in a precarious position owing to the prevailing control price, which is altogether out of proportion to the present market price. The control price," he explained, "is based on the old price of 125s. per cwt., while the present price ranges from 180s. to 190s. per cwt."

Indians Dying at Food Kitchens

In spite of official relief measures Calcutta's death-rate from hunger is still high, Reuter cables. In the last five days the daily death-rate of sick destitutes in Calcutta hospitals was between 75 and 85.

A large majority of destitutes migrating to Orissa are so emaciated and of such low vitality that they cannot be saved, it is stated, even after being properly fed and treated. Many are dying at the food kitchens.

Cigars Taken at Border

Mr. T. J. Rees, President of British Rotary, who, with his wife, returned to Belfast from a visit to Dublin at the week-end, had a box of cigars and some handkerchiefs, which had been presented by Dublin Rotarians, taken from them by the Eire Customs. No attempt had been made to conceal the goods, which were declared at the border. Belfast Rotarians afterwards made good the loss.

Shell Kills Italian Bishop

SUGAR RATIONING

NOTICE TO TRADERS AND CONSUMERS.

As it now appears that manufacture at the sugar factories will commence shortly, the Minister for Supplies announces that it will not be necessary to bring into operation the reductions in the sugar ration of domestic consumers and in the allowances to manufacturers, catering establishments and institutions announced on the 14th October, 1943.

In any case where the reduced ration of ½ lb. has been supplied an extra ½ lb. may now be obtained from the shopkeeper.

Big Curragh Prize for Dunseverick

BEATEN a neck by Astrologer in the Irish Cambridgeshire a fortnight ago, Dunseverick gave his owner, Mr. C. L. Robinson, pleasant compensation by winning the Curragh October Handicap on Saturday by three lengths from Sammy's Rock. Tommy Burns brought the winner from behind, on the outside, to beat the opposition in sound style by a very strong finish. Sammy's Rock was the leader in the early stages, but could not resist Dunseverick's challenge close to home. Mill Boy, King Kling and Airy Prince all looked to have a chance about a furlong from home.

It was not a happy day for punters, despite Dunseverick's success, for the only other first choice to win was Mr. J. McGrath's Katushka in the Harehill T.Y.O. Plate, but she had to be ridden hard to get the better of the little-fancied Good Morning, less than a length separating them at the post. The last race provided the best finish of the day, Silversol just getting up in the last few strides to beat Great Sacrifice by a neck after a tremendous tussle between the two.

Drumcondra Forwards in Great Form

DRUMCONDRA 5 DUNDALK ... 1

THE Dundalk defence gave an absolutely inept display against the lively Drumcondra forwards, and the visitors were deservedly trounced at Tolka Park yesterday.

The home side was on top practically throughout, with the result that the Dundalk forwards got much of the ball and, with the exception of some bright touches by Lavery and Barlowe, they made little of their few chances. Drumcondra were sound at every point, and, with the forwards in sparkling form, Matier was given a hard afternoon's work. He was the only Dundalk defender to acquit himself at all well, although he, too, was several times at fault.

Drumcondra went ahead after eight minutes, Daly beating Hearty to score with a hard drive. Immediately after the home goal had a narrow escape when Flanagan headed just over. Shortly before half-time, Ward, receiving from McNamara, increased the home lead with a mid-time goal. Soon after the resumption McNamara made it three with a header from a corner. After O'Rourke had converted a penalty, Dyer beat Matier with a good shot from a 20 yards' free. Dundalk's only goal came in the last couple of minutes, when Leathem headed in a good centre from Lavery.

CORK WELL BEATEN

ROVERS ..... 5 CORK 2

Cork United's half-backs were crushed at Milltown Park, and the visitors' inside right forward was completely off his game and Curtin, the pivot, was overpowered by Byrne. Rovers' football was excellent; half-backs and forwards co-ordinated with precision and effectiveness, and the forwards finished so strongly that Foley must have had twenty bullet-like shots to cope with to Palmer's one.

Even when Hayes, the United captain, in an effort to strengthen his middle line, put Curtin at left half instead of McGowan, it made not the least difference. The Rovers continued to sweep onward, brilliantly led by Crowe, whose trapping of the ball, deft passing and shooting were features of an excellent all-round display. Byrne, Rovers' centre-forward, scored first, Dunne, after a grand individual run, passing to Curtin, who had only to tap the ball into an open goal. Crowe headed the equaliser 15 minutes later, and a minute afterwards Coad scored from a penalty for "hands" against J. O'Reilly. Crowe got Rovers' third before the interval, and from the second half Coad got two more for Rovers, and Dunne scored for Cork.

O'LEARY SCORES A "HAT-TRICK"

LIMERICK..... 4 GATE..... 1

Following on their surprise victory over Cork United last week, Limerick beat St. James's Gate at Limerick yesterday. Limerick kept up the pressure throughout, and, while St. James's Gate showed cleverness, they lacked finish. There were no really brilliant spots in the game, which, however, was lively and well contested. The teams were level at the interval, and then O'Leary distinguished himself by scoring a hat-trick in the second half. In the first half Cronin scored for Limerick, and Matthews for St. James's Gate.

LUCKY POINT FOR BOHEMIANS

SHELBOURNE ... 2 BOHEMIANS ... 2

W. M'Donald, the Bohemians' centre-forward, scored two goals at Shelbourne Park on Saturday, but when, for the second time, he beat McAlinden, who stood waiting for the whistle to blow, there could be little doubt about his being offside.

The first half of the game was tame enough, but in the last half hour the teams altered their tactics and kept the ball going merrily on the ground.

Twenty minutes from the start M'Cluskey, a very promising centre-forward gave no chance to Landers, who had pushed out the ball as it dropped from the cross-bar, and he got a very fine second with a header ten minutes later. Nearing the interval Glennon hit the Shelbourne bar, and from the rebound M'Donald headed through. M'Donald's second came halfway through the closing period.

N.I. Gold Cup.—Celtic 3, Distillery 0; Linfield 2, Derry City 0, Glentoran 2, Cliftonville 0.
International.—England 8 (Hagan 2, Lawton 4, Carter, Matthews), Scotland 0.

Hockey Victory for "Gate"

JAMES'S GATE... 3 Y.M.C.A..... 2

The meeting of the unbeaten league leaders, Y.M.C.A. and St. James's Gate at Clarence road, was a bright and fast encounter. * Y.M.C.A. opened briskly and C. Strong, receiving from Hussey, put them ahead after ten minutes' play. Before the interval he added a second goal, while Shakespeare scored for "Gate," and, despite Colter's retirement with a badly cut over the eye, Y.M.C.A. retained their lead.

Colter resumed in the second period, but within ten minutes Rannon equalised for Gate, who subsequently found themselves on the defensive with the visitors' attack pressing hard. Parkinson, in the Gate goal, saved magnificently from Strong and Colter, but towards the end Gate again took up the running, and Rannon scored the winning goal.

RAILWAY UNION 0 DUBLIN U..... 0

The fact that neither side scored at Portrane is by the most adequate comment on a match about which there was little to enthuse. While both sets of forwards had a fair share of the play in midfield, they failed badly within the circle; and Davey, in the Trinity goal, and Cannon at the other end, dealt splendidly with the few dangerous shots which came their way.

PORTRANE ..... 5 AVOCA 1

At Portrane, Avoca without R. F. Browne, were no match for the home team, whose defence was seldom seriously tested. Bateman made some excellent saves in Avoca's goal, and W. Mellon defended well. Ennis (2) and McCormick (2) scored for Portrane, and Sarratt scored for Avoca

THREE ROCK R. 1 CORINTHIANS 0

Although having much the better of the play Three Rock Rovers were fortunate to defeat Corinthians at Londonbridge road, a snap goal by Strong in the first minute of the second half deciding the issue. Like Rovers, the visitors' attack was ineffective, and Cuffe had nothing to do. In front of a fair crowd, the game has been keen for some time, and Matthews had another good match at left half.

PEMBROKE W. 2 DALKEY ... 0

The winning margin in a way reflected Pembroke Wanderers' superiority over Dalkey at Serpentine avenue. They did nearly all the attacking, but found it hard to get the ball past Browne, who had an inspired day in the Dalkey goal. The first score came soon after the start when J. Martin beat Neville in a penalty bully and it was not until the closing stages that Y. Raby netted the second from a rebound.

Small Supplies of Sound Securities

DESPITE the fact that there were very few Irish company reports or dividends to hand during the past week, public interest in local securities continued on a good scale, and markets presented quite a busy appearance. The tone in most departments was again favourable. Even though prices have advanced steadily over the past couple of years, brokers are almost daily asked the same question—i.e., What Irish securities would you recommend? And as each week passes this question is getting more difficult to answer.

Securities one would like to suggest are almost unobtainable, while the market in many other favourites is gradually growing smaller. Investors, therefore, have to exercise patience and pick up any lots that come on offer.

The local Gilt-edged market is no exception to the general rule, and stocks on offer are by no means plentiful. There is a large amount of capital awaiting investment in this class of stock. As expected, dealings in the new Limerick 3½ p.c. Loan opened at ½ premium; but, as soon as "stag" selling had subsided, the price went ahead to almost 1 prem.

A COMPARISON

Even at this price it does not look overvalued; for stocks of this class are not to be had at around par. For instance, Dublin 3½ p.c. 1955-80 changed hands a day or two ago at 104, and looks buyers at this price. A switch from this stock into the new Limerick Loan looks attractive, for income is unchanged and the redemption date is little altered. The Limerick stock is redeemable in 1956, and not later than 1972. Of course, the Dublin Loan is a trustee stock, while the other is not, but this point is of not much importance to the average investor.

To say the market in Great Southern Rails is very puzzling is putting it mild. This market, which closed strong a week ago, opened all sellers last Monday, and continued liquidation has put prices considerably lower. Yet there is nothing to account for this rapid change in sentiment. Of course, in the event of a general reorganisation overhanging the market there is bound to be a good deal of rumour as to the possible details.

There is only one way to put a stop to this wild speculation in these issues, and that is for the company to make a statement as soon as possible. Genuine holders are dismayed by the present state of the market. Holders of the prior charges should, it would seem, retain their stocks. The Deb. stock should receive favourable treatment, while the arrears of dividends on the Guaranteed stock cannot wholly be ignored.

GAS SHARES

The market in Alliance Gas Ord. shares is holding steady. The company's profits showed a satisfactory margin for the first half-year, and the feeling is that if this recovery is maintained, the company may see its way to pay a larger dividend for the current half-year. On the present dividend of 1 p.c. the shares look far too high. Let it be said that it is in a position to buy them away they should pay for their keep.

Draperies continued to attract a fair amount of speculative interest, and a bull feature was the buying of Pim Bros. Ord. shares, which have now reached a high level of 12/-. It is difficult to see how these shares can be worth this price. This concern, like most other drapery companies, is undoubtedly doing well, but it must be remembered that the Pref. dividend is in arrears since July, 1931, and a lot of leeway will have to be made up before the Ord. shares can come into the dividend list.

Tobacco Companies' Problems

THE financial year of the leading Tobacco companies is nearing completion, and investors will be looking forward with some expectation to dividend statements and annual reports. Many millions of pounds are invested in the industry, which, despite the enormous rise in prices, due to increased duties, has maintained its output in an extraordinary manner.

Apart from the extent to which taxation has eaten into profits, the leading companies have maintained their position, and, judging by the return of 4 per cent. and under now obtainable on their shares, continue to hold the confidence of investors.

While the present is thus comparatively satisfactory, what of the future? Will the smoking public of peace-time be able to pay the present high prices, or will it be found possible to reduce the duties? Will the large export trade so severely cut into by events in the Far East and elsewhere be recovered? These and other problems will have to be faced. Fortunately the financial position of the leading companies in strong, and they are well prepared to meet whatever difficulties may arise.

TAX BURDEN

Principal interest attached to the two giant concerns, the Imperial and British-American Companies, which form the two halves of one combination, the former dealing with home trade and the latter with foreign business. The combined capital is over £41 million pounds, on which net profits, owing to taxation, have fallen from 16 million pounds a year to 11 million pounds. Dividends have also been reduced—the Imperial from 25 to 17½ p.c. and the British-American from 20 to 10 p.c., tax free in both cases.

Although their interests are closely linked, the view is held that the British-American Company, with the hopes of an eventual recovery of its world-wide export trade, offers the best prospect for investors. At the same time, it should be remembered that the Imperial Company has a very large interest in its sister concern.

Apart from this great combination there are three other companies in the industry which should not be overlooked. Carreras Ltd., with an issued capital of £5,020,300, has been equally successful in maintaining its output. Like its larger contemporaries, taxation has eaten largely into its profits, and the dividend has been reduced between 1939 and 1942 from 30 to 27½ p.c. It has a strong financial position, and at the last annual meeting, the Chairman looked forward to favourable results for the current year.

Godfrey Phillips, with a capital of £1,856,659, has an important export trade with the Dominions. Through the war it has maintained its dividend at 10 p.c., although the bonus of pre-war years has not been forthcoming. £1 shares, at 47/- yield £4 5/1 per cent.

Gallaher, Ltd., the Belfast company, with an issued capital of £2,707,552, is in a class by itself. Throughout the war its profits and dividend have been steady, a total of 27½ p.c. having been paid each year since 1955.

ATTOCK OIL

A reduction of 2½ p.c. in the total dividend for 1942 is announced by the Attock Oil Company with a final payment of 3½ p.c., following an interim at the same rate, thus bringing the full dividend up to 7½ p.c., against 10 p.c. paid for 1941. A point to be considered, however, is that the 1942 final is not subject to U.K. income tax, owing to a provisional Dominion income tax relief in respect of the dividend and estimated relief in respect of previous dividends. It will be seen, therefore, that the difference between the 1941 and 1942 payments is small.

ENNIS URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL.
APPOINTMENT OF RESIDENT ENGINEER.
Applications are invited by the County Manager from persons having a degree in engineering, or its equivalent, for the purpose of acting as Resident Engineer in connection with the completion of the Ennis Sewerage Works, which embraces the laying of a siphon across the River Fergus, the completion of the outfall works, the making of house connections, etc. The person appointed must devote his whole time to the work, and he must carry out all instructions given to him by the Borough Surveyor in connection with the matter. The salary to be at the rate of six guineas per week, which must cover all travelling, hotel and other expenses. Applications to reach the undersigned through ordinary post not later than 10 a.m. on the 20th October, 1943. Preference will be given to the applicant, who, amongst other things, has had experience in sewerage works, particularly in the construction of siphons. The appointment will be made subject to the sanction of the Minister for Local Government and Public Health, and will be made by the County Manager on the advice of the Borough Surveyor.

County Manager.
Offices: Courthouse, Ennis, Co. Clare.
Date: 13th October, 1943.

J. & L. F. GOODBODY, LTD.
At the General Meeting of J. & L. F. Goodbody, Ltd., held on 15th October, 1943, the Chairman, Mr. Jonathan Goodbody, mentioned that owing to lack of raw materials, the Waterford Works had remained closed during the year. The production at Clara had continued, though on a very reduced scale, and the stock of Raw Jute in hands was sufficient to maintain this rate of production for some time to come.
In spite of the shortage of jute goods, the Sack Order and careful allocations have done a great deal to mitigate the hardship which might otherwise have arisen.

Transport Troubles

When new Ministries for the twenty-six counties were being formed twenty years ago, this newspaper took strong exception to the proposal that public transport should be assigned to the part-time attention of a Minister and department charged with other serious responsibilities. We took, and still take, the view that transport and communications—which is to say, road, rail and overseas traffic, telephone, telegraph and postal services—formed a natural grouping of subjects that was quite sufficient to require the whole time of any Minister. Though our plea was strongly supported by members of the Dail and Senate, it failed to find favour with the sponsors of the Ministries Bill, and transport organisation became one of the many problems which were assigned to the Department of Industry and Commerce. Almost at once the subject became one of absorbing interest and increasing difficulty. As private car-owners multiplied, railway interests began to feel the draught. Soon the motor 'bus arrived, to make further inroads on railway revenues, and, with rapid increases in the number of merchandise lorries on the road, the position of railways became sufficiently serious to call for ministerial action. Thus there began a long series of legislative and administrative efforts—some by Mr. Cosgrave's Government and others by Mr. de Valera's—to save railway undertakings from collapse. These efforts seemed to have reached their limit when the Minister for Industry and Commerce secured legislative approval for his proposal to write off about half of the Great Southern Railway's nominal capital. The remedy again was ineffective, and the downward drift continued until the G.S.R. Company's proposal to abandon some hundreds of miles of its branch lines led to the appointment of the Railway Tribunal. The report of that body favoured further investigation, and in other respects was inconclusive. Before the Tribunal's proceedings were complete, war emergencies created new transport demands. Severe restrictions of coal and petrol supplies, increasing demands for the carriage of fuel and food and rising costs of operation and maintenance, combined to call for further ministerial action. Despite heavy increases in revenues per mile in its railway, 'bus and merchandise lorry services, the G.S.R. Company failed to make ends meet; yet the market prices of its shares rose to much higher levels than had prevailed during the Railway Tribunal's investigations. Finally, the position became so acute that the Minister for Industry and Commerce—with the managing director of the Dublin Transport Company as his deputy—took over complete control of the G.S.R. system, and, by prohibiting the use of all road vehicles except those of the company, established an effective transport monopoly throughout large areas.

There matters stand—and the prospect is that the area of monopoly soon will be extended. Public interest—also, essocially, the interest of railway proprietors—centres on what is to follow. Why do the market prices of G.S.R. stocks remain above their pre-war levels? The answer lies with Mr. Lemass, who last week chose the occasion of a party meeting to announce that the Government was preparing a long-term transport policy "which will in due course be submitted to the Dail." On the same occasion he resented the suggestion that advantage is being taken of present emergency conditions "to introduce a new long-term transport policy with a view to the post-war period." Let us accept Mr. Lemass's assurance that no such "device" is in the Government's mind, and then let us ask him to answer two plain questions. First, is it not intended that the "new long-term policy" which soon is to be revealed (presumably in the form of a bill) to the Dail, will apply to post-war conditions? Secondly, as the chief architect of that "long-term policy," does he suggest that it has been, or is being, framed quite independently of the emergency measures that now are in force or yet may be promulgated? We ask these questions without any desire to embarrass the Minister in his effort to solve a whole series of problems to which he nd his predecessors have addressed their minds without sign of success. We ask them because we find it impossible to believe that the emergency orders issued by him—as Minister for Industry and Commerce and Minister for Supplies—have been conceived without any reference to post-war conditions. We ask for answers because of the profound and far-reaching importance of the issues that are involved, and for the further reason that an immediate and plain statement concerning the broad principles on which the long-term policy is to rest is due not alone to railway proprietors and owners of road vehicles, but to the hundred and one interests which, in greater or less degree, depend on the organisation of public service transport. If the principles of a policy have been settled by the Government they ought to be made public at once. If, on the other hand, they remain to be settled, we repeat our plea that a Minister—possibly Mr. Lemass himself—shall be set free to devote his whole time and attention to the mass of problems which fall within the ambit of national transport and communications. Already we have seen too many results of the remedies propounded by "maid-of-all-work" Ministers and departments.

"But Little Meat"

The evolution of the classless society, to which the Marxists look forward, seems likely to be a long business. Class distinction is inherent in our social life from the very bottom; so it appears, at any rate, from the fact that in one Dublin school domestic science, a compulsory subject for all other girls, is not compulsory for Jews or vegetarians. Exactly what process of reasoning leads the responsible authorities to make this exception we do not claim to know. Perhaps they feel that people who, through religious or any other scruples, cannot eat like "normal" human beings, may do without eating at all. Perhaps they merely are concerned—and this motive is laudable enough—lest compulsory domestic science courses might bring either Jewish or vegetarian children into contact with foods which they abhor. The bracketing of the code of Judea, however, with the principles professed by Mr. Bernard Shaw is, to say the least of it, unusual. It may be occasioned by a memory of the dietetic habits of Nebuchadnezzar in his less happy years; for that eminent monarch, according to Old Testament authority, then crawled upon all fours, and ate grass like a beast of the field. The rule is designed, of course, for the benefit of the excluded classes; but it may prove to be distinctly unfortunate for them. Jews probably will learn their own methods of cookery at home. Vegetarians may have to do without cookery altogether. What, after all, is the point of teaching domestic science—so a teacher might reason—to a child who proposes to spend the remainder of her life browsing upon the front lawn? Why should she be taught how to run a house when her spiritual home is a paddock? Would she not be occupied much more profitably in learning elementary botany or in studying the Grazing Notes in the Farmer and Stockbreeder? Unfortunately, it happens that training in cooking vegetables is more necessary in this country than training in almost any other branch of the culinary art. We ourselves may be content to eat chunky turnips and watery cabbage; visitors who have tasted properly-cooked vegetables soon make it plain that they are not. Vegetarians, at least, ought to be able to set a good example.

IRISH DRESS-DESIGNING

The scarcity of paper patterns, and the delay in deliveries of particular styles, has given rise to a spate of amateur dress-designing. The principal of a Dublin school of dressmaking told the Irish Times yesterday that there had been a great increase in the number of amateurs in the pattern-making classes, and a great number of them were developing well, showing taste and imagination in their ideas.

Perhaps the emergency and its attendant problems may turn out some Irish dress designers worthy to compete with those of other countries.

CRUISKEEN LAWN

By Myles na gCopaleen

ANY reader who feels he or she would like to meet myself and family should write to the Editor asking for particulars as to when I am at home, the best time to call, and whether it is necessary to leave cards beforehand. You will find us, I fear, just a little bit formal. My wife, for instance, keeps her hands in a hand-bag. This, however, need not disturb you. Again, if it happens that you come to dinner, you must be prepared for certain old-world customs—outmoded if you like, but still capable of imparting grace and charm to a gathering of those who knew the vanished world of yesteryear. First a glass of pale sherry, exquisite in its thin needle-like impact on the palate, potent of preprandial salivation. Then fine-tasted bouillon in china bowls, served with white rolls, those clandestinely-sieved American cigarettes. My jewelled hand has now strayed to the Turkish bell-tassel and the great triple peal that calls for the dinner proper rings out in the distant servants' hall. This is where the guest who is accustomed to the rougher usage of to-day may receive a slight surprise. When the dinner is brought in, he will note that it is . . . . well . . . . in a dinner jacket. Big mass of roast beef in the breast, sleeves stuffed with spuds, sprigs of celery up through the button-holes, gravy sopping out everywhere. A bit formal if you like, but if one does not observe the punctilious regimen of good behaviour, one is, after all, very little better than the beast of the field. Indeed, remembering the execrable manners of a colleague of mine in this great newspaper organisation, I had almost said that one is very little better than the beast of The Field.

When the coffee stage is reached, nothing will do my eccentric wife but have it accompanied by an odd confection of her own invention—longbread.

Miscellaneous

The Irish Times has been full of grand news these days. "The Maoris," I read "are sometimes called 'the brown Irish' because they are always smiling and happy." Fancy! New Zealand I do not know, but strange that it should be the seat of so monstrous a sarcasm. I know that we are morose, crypt-faced, inclined to the view that life is a serious disorder which ultimately proves fatal. But why should these antipodean britishers see fit to send this sneer to us three thousand miles across the sea in the middle of a world war?

Then I read that "future Croke Park matches may see extremely large numbers of police on duty." Hmm.

Could the rules not be changed to provide that in every large match at least one of the teams shall be composed entirely of policemen? Alternatively, could not all teams playing there be bound to the peace before they take the field and thus be liable for a stiff jail sentence if they commit assaults on the referee or each other?

Here is another extraordinary news item: "A pig feeder may slaughter a sick animal, cure it and get the top price. In fact the pig may die and, as an afterthought, be cured."

There you get, very nicely put, the distinction between a corpse and a carcase.

A Memoir of Keats

Keats and Chapman were once discussing their ancestors. Chapman inquired whether it was a fact that one of the poet's forbears had been Lord Mayor of Port Said. Keats said yes.

"I think I remember you showing me his photograph once," Chapman said. "If I'm not mistaken, he was rather eccentric and while he had no dislike of German as such, he could not bear the sight of elderly grizzled Germans and did his best to banish all such from the town."

"You are right," Keats said. "Here is the picture you're thinking of. He was fifty when that was taken."

Chapman examined it.

"He looks very young," he said, "for his years."

"He hadn't a grey Herr in his Said," Keats replied.

DR. HYDE'S MESSAGE

"On the occasion of its golden jubilee I send my blessing and heartiest congratulations to the Gaelic League's oldest branch, An Ard Chraobh." This is the message Dr. Douglas Hyde, the President, and President of An Ard Chraobh from its inception in 1894 until 1921, has just sent to the editor of the journal, to be issued shortly, in connection with the Ard Craobh's jubilee celebrations. The message will be published in the book.

Workers' Gaelic Festival.—Satisfactory progress is being made with the project to hold an annual Workers' Gaelic Festival and Trade Unions in Dublin have been written to requesting their co-operation. There will be language, singing, dancing and recitation competitions; and a history test dealing chiefly with the labour movement.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Captain Manders

For four years (writes our Motoring Correspondent) the little picture herewith has been lying at the side of my desk. I thought that I might never again have an excuse for using it.

CAPTAIN MANDERS.

The racing motor cyclist is C. H. W. Manders, now a captain in the Army. While his duties as a transport officer permit of his having an occasional ride, it is a long time since he wore crash-hat and leathers.

The excuse for using the picture, however, is the announcement of his engagement to Miss Jean Laird, and an additional excuse for such a picture is that Miss Laird's brother, "Duggie," also was a motor cyclist in the happy days.

Captain Manders has been based on Limerick for a long time, and he has many interesting facts to recount about that city when he comes Dublinwards.

Dail to Derby

The fact that it is intended to purge the fauna of St. Stephen's Green ran into my mind the other day as I walked into Leinster House. The quadrangle was strangely quiet. I mused on the fate of the ducks and drakes, and suddenly it occurred to me that the silence was significant.

There used to be pigeons—flocks of them—flapping hither and thither between the National Gallery and the Museum, cooing and billing in the architectural alcoves of the pillared buildings. Never a day but there was movement there as they whirled and dived. They were almost a part of the atmosphere there.

Now the silence is broken only by the clanging of the gate. A Board of Works employee drove the birds away. During the quiet, lazy, summer afternoons he came there unostentatiously with an air gun and caused as much officially sanctioned damage as he could in the interest of cleaner buildings.

The mortality rate among the birds must have been heavy, and I wonder how many Dail "doves" found their way into Derby dinner dishes.

Tony Mathews

Master Tony Mathews, young Dublin actor and broadcaster—he is only in his fourteenth year—seems to have got his foot on the first rung of London's theatrical ladder.

He has gone to London at the invitation of Emlyn Williams, who had been impressed by his broadcasts from Radio Eireann. Dame Sybil Thorndyke, too, spoke favourably of him when she was in Dublin recently.

News has just come through that young Mathews is to take the part of a German youngster in "The Watch on the Rhine," now running at the Aldwych Theatre. The author is Lillian Hellman, who wrote the successful play, "The Little Foxes." Master Mathews did so well at trial that it was decided to give him the part straight away. Geraldine Fitzgerald, by the way, is in the film version of "The Watch on the Rhine," now showing in London, too. Master Tony is likely to appear in the new Emlyn Williams play when it is produced later in the year.

He is a pupil of Miss Ursula White and the Leinster Academy. Tutored by Miss White and Miss Mai Byrne, he has distinguished himself among the verse-speaking youths who have been a feature of the Dublin stage in the last few years.

Dublin will wish him the best of luck.

Uncle Sam

In reply to a recent inquiry, I am informed that, during the war of 1812 "Uncle Sam" was the sobriquet attributed to Samuel Wilson, a Troy (N.Y.) slaughter merchant noted for his kindliness and uprightness. His shipments of beef to soldiers became known as "Uncle Sam's beef," and the expression was quickly adopted to designate all United States Government property.
